

A visual detection kit has been developed for the on-spot determination of ethanol/IPA in hand sanitisers and, in turn, its quality. The method is performed in minutes and can be utilized for identifying fake/unusable products.