

Arc Melting Furnace

Arc Melting is used to prepare alloy samples.

Heating is via an electric arc struck between a tungsten electrode and metals placed in a depression (crucible) in the copper hearth. Melting is performed in argon atmosphere.